

The Thinkery - "Everything is Interesting"

Barry Lee presents:

A Chinese-American Perspective on Identity: My Identity in China, the U.S., and on the Road

I will discuss a personal journey through time and place dealing with the ever-changing and complex nature of identity. Who am I? How do I define myself and how do others from vastly different backgrounds perceive me? How does naturalization, a name change, buried stories from my ancestors, and a DNA test change the way I see myself? The answers are surprising (and sometimes shocking) as I come to grips with my own identity while backpacking through more than 40 countries in the last few years. I will share my views and some interesting tales from the road to hopefully spark a conversation from the audience on their own experience dealing with identity.
