This talk examines the complexities of contemporary India-China relations in the broader Asian context. It focusses on the territorial and economic concerns in bilateral relations; the impact of cultural (mis)perceptions; and the contending regional and global aspirations. The talk will also outline possible ways in which the relations between the two countries could improve, especially through mutual understanding and collaborations in the arenas of regional and global concerns.

Tansen Sen is Professor of History at Baruch College, City University of New York, USA. Currently, he is a Visiting Professor of Humanities and Global China and the Director of the Center for Global Asia at NYU-Shanghai, China. He is author of Buddhism, Diplomacy, and Trade: The Realignment of Sino-Indian Relations (2003), co-author of Traditional China in Asian and World History (2012), and editor of Buddhism Across Asia: Networks of Material, Cultural and Intellectual Exchange (2014). He earned his MA from Peking University and PhD from the University of Pennsylvania.
