

The Hopkins China Forum and

The Royal Asiatic Society China

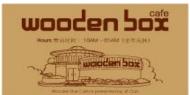

cordially invite you to:

Meeting China Halfway: How to Defuse the Emerging US-China Rivalry

Lyle Goldstein

Associate Professor
China Maritime Studies Institute
U.S. Naval War College

Wednesday, December 21st, 2016 19:15pm –20:30 pm

9 Qinghai Lu (just to the South of Nanjing West Road) 青海路 9 号, 近南京西路, 地铁二号线南京西路站

19:00 – Doors Open

19:15 - Lecture

20:00 - Q&A

20:30 – Mixer/Live Jazz

Though a U.S.—China conflict is far from inevitable, major tensions are building in the Asia-Pacific region. These strains are the result of historical enmity, cultural divergence, and deep ideological estrangement, not to mention apprehensions fueled by geopolitical competition and the closely related "security dilemma." Despite worrying signs of intensifying rivalry between Washington and Beijing, few observers have provided concrete paradigms to lead this troubled relationship away from disaster. Goldstein's book, Meeting China Halfway: How to Defuse the Emerging US-China Rivalry, lays bare both U.S. and Chinese perceptions of where their interests clash and proposes new paths to ease bilateral tensions through compromise. Each chapter contains a "cooperation spiral"—the opposite of an escalation spiral—to illustrate the policy proposals. Goldstein not only parses findings from the latest American scholarship but also breaks new ground by analyzing hundreds of Chinese-language sources, including military publications, never before evaluated by Western experts. Goldstein makes one hundred policy proposals in his book, so as to foster real debate about cooperative policy solutions to the most vexing problems in U.S.-China relations.

Lyle Goldstein is an Associate Professor in the China Maritime Studies Institute (CMSI), which was established at U.S. Naval War College to improve mutual understanding and maritime cooperation with China. He served as the founding director of CMSI from 2006 to 2011. Proficient in Chinese and Russian, Professor Goldstein has conducted extensive field research in both China and Russia. His research on Chinese security policy, especially concerning maritime development, has been published in China Quarterly, International Security, IISS Survival, Contemporary Southeast Asia, Journal of Strategic Studies, and U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings. Professor Goldstein is the author of Meeting China Halfway: How to Defuse the Emerging US-China Rivalry (2015). Goldstein's first book, which compared proliferation crises and focused particularly on Chinese nuclear strategy, was published by Stanford University Press in 2005. Books of which he is co-editor include China's Future Nuclear Submarine Force (2007), China's Energy Strategy: The Impact on Beijing's Maritime Policies (2008), China Goes to Sea: Maritime Transformation in a Comparative Historical Context (2009), China, the US and 21st Century Sea Power: Defining a Maritime Partnership (2010) and Chinese Aerospace Power: Evolving Maritime Roles (2011). Goldstein earned a PhD from Princeton University in 2001 and has an MA from Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

About Hopkins China Forum: Hopkins China Forum events are organized under the auspices of The Johns Hopkins University and its affiliated alumni associations worldwide. For more information on Hopkins events in Shanghai, please contact Frank Tsai at the Johns Hopkins University Alumni Association – Shanghai at editor@shanghai-review.org.

About Royal Asiatic Society China: Royal Asiatic Society China is an independent, Shanghai-based branch of Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland established 1823 in London. RAS aims to serve Shanghai's expatriate community with a variety of culturally enriching opportunities to increase people's understanding of Asia and especially China. To receive email announcements of upcoming events, contact Julie Zhu, bookings@royalasiaticsociety.org.cn.