The Cyber Security Law of the People's Republic of China promulgated on 7th November 2016 has come into effect since 1st June 2017. As the first comprehensive law in China governing cyber security, the Cyber Security Law has formulated a number of new legal concepts and requirements involving network operators, critical information infrastructure, security review, and security assessment, and imposes extensive compliance obligations, especially on foreign-invested enterprises in China. With the intensive promulgation of the relevant implementing rules, companies operating in China are facing compliance challenges of cyber security and data protection. This talk introduces the recent legislative and law enforcement activities and explores compliance strategies for foreign-invested enterprises in China.

Zhou Yang is a partner at Zhong Lun Law Firm Shanghai Office. Before joining Zhong Lun, he practiced with Baker & McKenzie LLP Shanghai Office and Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP Shanghai Office respectively. Yang also externed at the Division of Corporate Finance of the Securities and Exchange Commission in D.C. Yang is a member of the Corporate Department, specializing in cross-border M&A, Technology, Media and Telecommunication, cyber security and data protection, compliance/anti-corruption. Yang obtained his LLB degree from Nanjing University and his LLM degrees from Nanjing University School of Law and University of Washington School of Law, respectively. Yang is licensed to the PRC Bar and the New York State Bar.

Carly Ramsey is an Associate director in Control Risks, a global risk consultancy specializing in political, integrity, and security risk. Based in Shanghai, Carly advises companies operating in China how to successfully manage the commercial and operational challenges brought on by political and regulatory risk. Prior to joining Control Risks, Carly was with APCO Worldwide, where she provided corporate advisory, government relations, and corporate communications strategy to multinationals, trade associations, and governments. She has a master's degree in foreign policy and international security from Georgetown University and a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Western Ontario.

China Crossroads hosts lectures and panels on all topics related to China, including foreign policy, business, and society, as well as those on other areas as they relate to China, the idea being that China is both already a "crossroads" of the world and itself at a "crossroads" in terms of its future global influence.
