History matters in China today, and what matters in China matters to us all. This talk explores China's struggle against foreign power in the 20th Century, and parts of this story that took place in China itself, and overseas: in New York, Hollywood, Canberra, and London, and across the capitals of the West.

Robert Bickers is Professor of History at the University of Bristol. He is the author of five books, including the acclaimed Empire Made Me: An Englishman Adrift in Shanghai (2004) and The Scramble for China: Foreign Devils in the Qing Empire, 1832-1914 (2011). Bickers specializes in modern China, the history of colonialism, and in particular that of the British Empire and its relations with China and Shanghai. His latest book released this year is Out of China: How the Chinese Ended the Era of Western Domination (2017)

China Crossroads hosts lectures and panels on all topics related to China, including foreign policy, business, and society, as well as those on other areas as they relate to China, the idea being that China is both already a "crossroads" of the world and itself at a "crossroads" in terms of its future global influence.
