The post-Covid environment and the improved efficiency of video conferencing technologies have fueled corporate decentralization and online collaboration. As advances in AI drop the cost of predictions, tools are emerging that facilitate and simplify complex, online service-based interactions. All this opens access to a new breed of leadership development coaches, who leverage their operational experience and tech to deliver a laser-focused experience that is simultaneously scalable and highly customized. Learn how cloud-based tools, data-driven analytics and a structured methodology are enabling a new form of laser-focused advisory coaching that is rapidly improving the speed at which business leaders adapt to today's VUCA environment.
