This talk will take a deep dive into China's emerging data governance regime: the government perspectives that underpin it, current state of legal and regulatory development, and potential implications for trade and investment. With the development of data governance rules in China and globally, the search for a balance between security and development is just beginning.

Tom Nunlist is a tech policy analyst at Trivium China, where he focuses on data policy. Prior to that, he worked as a political analyst in risk consulting. Tom has lived and worked in Shanghai for more than eight years.

China Crossroads hosts talks on all topics related to China, including business, foreign policy, and other areas as they relate to China, the idea being that China is both already a “crossroads” of the world and itself at a “crossroads” in terms of its future global influence.
